

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL HISTORY WORKSHOP

Call for Papers

The Cambridge Economic and Social History Workshop is seeking papers for its Michaelmas Term 2026 programme, running from October to December. We invite postgraduate students and early career researchers to present works in progress as well as completed projects on any aspect of social and economic history, from any time period or geographic region.

Qualitative and quantitative approaches are equally welcome. Topics might include social and economic policy, historical demography, political economy, labour movements, financial institutions, or histories of poverty and welfare, and if you are unsure whether your work fits, please do get in touch.

The workshop is a friendly environment for discussion and feedback, and a good place to present for the first time. We particularly encourage MPhil and first-year PhD students to apply.

EACH SPEAKER

20 minutes

followed by half an hour of questions and discussion

SEND BY

21 September 2026

a title and a short abstract of 200 to 300 words

APPLY TO

Can Kazan

ck667@cam.ac.uk